

Robert G. Neill, Jr.

The first indication of Robert's exalted political career is his internship for Senator Ralph Yarbrough in 1965 through a Colgate University Washington Study Group.

Since then, Robert has been deeply involved in the local politics, and in a great many of events and organizations, too many to list.

Significant campaigns that he has participated in include Robert Kennedy (1968), George McGovern (1984), Gary Hart (1984), and Michael Dukakis.

Between 1983 and 1995, "Bob" was an invaluable member of Nancy McDonald's State Congressional Team and served as her Campaign Treasurer.

Today, he and his very intelligent wife, Rosemary, are very active in community and party activities. Through his personal tutelage, Robert guarantees a great party for years.
